A MESSAGE FROM DR. MONICA BRUNELLI

A message from Dr. Monica Brunelli: The contagion called Cabin Fever is caused by the bite of a mysterious creature that can be reference in the library. It makes you say everything in puzzles and—uh oh, I think I’ve contracted it. It can be cured by the ingredients in V-8 Juice. Keep an eye out for seven eye-popping sailors and look for some important beats. Stay healthy, Sea Monkeys!

ERRATA

The Editorial Staff deeply regrets the following errors in the March 7 edition:

- [1] On page 4, the “Errata” section mentioned “the following error” when in fact there were two errors. We regret the omission: an intern has been sacked.
- [2] That last margarita at JoCoachella. Definitely a mistake.

STILL ALIVE?

They said it was an impossible dream. “A concert in Loreto?” they asked, snorting with derision. “How are you going to make that happen?” But who’s laughing now? After our epic evening ashore, we can bask in the soft afterglow of success. Enjoy your time ashore in Loreto, for this afternoon at 3 pm we set sail for the greener ~~pastures~~ waters of the Vermilion Sea. For those still unsated by yesterday’s festival, we have oodles of fun events onboard.
¡Hasta la victoria siempre!

A LETTER FROM THE DEPUTY MAYOR OF LORETO

Dear Joco Cruise 2017,
On behalf of the city of Loreto, thank you for visiting our fair city and sharing your music with us! We hope you enjoyed your stay, and that you will come back soon. The following items were left behind after the concert— let us know if you would like to claim them: ten (10) fezzes, three (3) blue ukuleles, two (2) manuscript copies of Pat Rothfuss’ “The Doors of Stone”, one (1) live spider monkey/pony, and one (1) Gavin Verhey.

CAPTAIN’S “LOG”: THE AFTERMATH

March 8. 2017. We arrived in the mid afternoon, descending upon Loreto like a swarm of friendly locusts. None were spared (from fun!) After the music and food and mayhem, Loreto was thoroughly occupied. Today, in the aftermath, we continue our cruise, and the Devil take the hindmost. The crew have begun to whisper that I am mad, but what care I for their childish prattle? The sea calls!

WITH THANKS, AS ALWAYS, TO OUR KIND SPONSORS
