LEGOosterdam

What's the only thing better than a cruise ship filled with Sea Monkeys, friends, and family? If you said: "a scale replica of the ship constructed out of an interlocking brick system," we have great news for you! Be sure to check out the giant, Lego Oosterdam (hereafter: LEGOosterdam) in the Atrium on Deck 1.

Marvel at the stunning attention to detail—from tenders to staterooms to pool deck, it's all there! Thanks to Nathan Sawaya, the incredible artist who has built this, and brought with him a WHOLE BUNCH OF LEGOs, with which Sea Monkeys are welcome to "enhance" the ship display all week long! Office of Sea Monkey Legal Counsel: please do not actually attempt to board the LEGOosterdam.*

FRIENDSHIPPING BUTTONS

Back, by popular demand: Friendship! You may have picked up a pair of buttons in the terminal yesterday. If not, you can find them at the JoCo Cruise Info Desk (Atrium, Deck 1).

Feel free to wear one of these on your lanyard: green says "I'd like to meet new people!" and red says "I'm doing my own thing for now, thanks." Please respect the wishes of other Sea Monkeys- there are a lot of us on this boat, and while it's nice to meet new friends, sometimes we like having time to ourselves! Special thanks to Jenn and Trin from the Friendshipping podcast for these awesome buttons.

A QUIET PLACE ZONE

The Oosterdam is a mighty ship, and filled with many rooms of activities and fun and mayhem. But even amid the glorious chaos, there are oases of calm. Places you can go read a book, do a crossword, or sit quietly and gaze at the wondrous welkin around us [editor's note: I like the thought, but maybe start with more conventional synonyms for "sea"? We don't want to weird people out. "Welkin" feels like a Day 7 word].

These are the Quiet Zones. No gaming, no loud conversations—you get the idea. If you find yourself in one of the following Quiet Zones, remember the rules.

PORT OF CALL: HALF MOON CAY

Holland America's private island in the Caribbean. It's an all-time favorite beach and relaxation spot for JoCo Cruise that's also a protected nature preserve; it's as close to the Castaway experience as you can get! (At least, while still having a bar, beach chairs and a ship to leave on.)

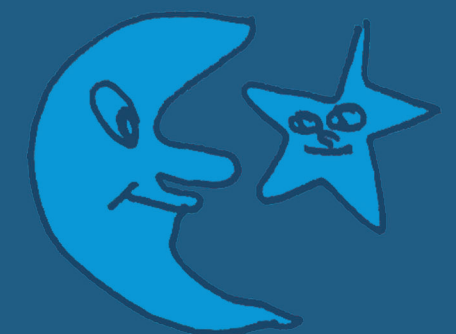

SCIENCE!

“There are very few persons who pursue science with true dignity.”

- Sir Humphry Davy: chemist, discoverer of potassium, notoriously bad company on cruises.

What does science mean to us today? Judging from the fate of our recent National Science Foundation grant application, we have no idea. Deriving from the Latin scientia, ("to win an argument on the internet,") today the word science refers to a formal system of observation, experiment, and rational inquiry, with its origins in the natural philosophy of the ancient world.

What about the "scientific revolution," you ask? Well, during that halcyon age, scientists did even more science than ever before- frankly, too much science, if you ask me. Alas, the days when you could simply grab a kite and run into a thunderstorm for SCIENCE are long gone - but that doesn't mean the spirit of rational inquiry has vanished! After all, if there's one thing we know about Science, it's that it is REAL.
