DAILY JOCO NEWS

PORT OF CALL: SAN JUAN!

Welcome to San Juan, the capital of Puerto Rico! Founded in 1521, San Juan is the oldest colonial city in the United States. It's famous for its beautiful Old Town architecture, restaurant scene, and for having featured the glorious mayhem of a rained-out JOCO 2019 land concert that made the pages of the New York Times (yes, really). Therefore, we entreat ye, that ye profit greatly from our sojourn here, taking unto yourselves adventures aplenty.

But come ye back, ~~when summer's in the meadow~~ before we all sail away, for more adventures, gaming, and music.

STORMOSCOPES, EPISODE IV

Aquarius: Hear a Sound? Turn around. Turn around to find the thing that made the sound.

Gemini: The Stars are Occupied at the Moment. Please come back later.

Pisces: Bloop-Bloop. Bloop-y bloop bloop. Squirt!

Libra: It's a dood day to shop for scales, which we hear you really like.

Grivo: Work a little harder to get things in order today.

Ophiuchus: You know that thing? The one you want to occur? It might happen. Maybe.

Book: A Marriage at Sea: A True Story of Love, Obsession, and Shipwreck

What do you like about it?

Well, have you ever considered selling all your worldly goods, quitting your job, and sailing away on a boat? Recent newlyweds Maurice and Madalyn Bailey made this dream their reality in the early 1970S, only to end up stranded on a raft in the Pacific for 117 days. This is an unputdownable true story that explores not only what people are capable of under extreme pressure, but also how our capacity to love and believe in ourselves can push us to accomplish unbelievable feats of strength and endurance. This survival story has totally gripped me and won't let go.

It has also made me appreciate the Lido Deck Buffet, a lot.
